Music Festival

Planning Guide

- Region Music Chairs
- Host Schools
- Music Directors

Introduction

This planning guide is intended to assist festival managers and participating directors in the planning and preparation of music festivals. It functions as a guide to those decisions, responsibilities, and actions that must precede a successful festival and as a reminder of the timeline that must be followed if difficulties are to be avoided. Festival managers, adjudicators, participating directors, and students should review applicable Rules and Regulations contained in the Music Section of the current UHSAA Yearbook prior to each event to avoid misunderstandings, disqualification, or unnecessary conflict. The UHSAA Yearbook Music Pages are available on the UHSAA website Music Page (uhsaa.org).

All UHSAA member high schools that participate in region and state jazz festivals and region and state solo & ensemble festivals must adhere to UHSAA rules and regulations (UHSAA Handbook & Yearbook). Only students who meet the UHSAA eligibility requirements should be allowed to participate in region and state jazz and solo & ensemble festivals. Each school is required to electronically submit eligibility lists for jazz and solo & ensemble prior to the designated deadline.

A music educator will be appointed as a region music chair to serve as the liaison between local music educators in a specific region and the Utah High School Activities Association. The region music chairs are responsible to coordinate meetings and communication with region schools for the purpose of selecting region festival dates, sites, assigning management responsibilities, distribute the UHSAA information and planning other cooperative music activities. The region music chair and the assigned region administrator shall work in partnership to ensure that the festivals are conducted in compliance with all UHSAA Rules and Regulations. State Festival Chairs assume a similar responsibility for state festival conduct. State festival dates for each academic year are determined by a music committee consisting of representatives of the UHSAA, the UMEA, and the Utah State Office of Education.

Adjudication forms are available on the Music Page on the UHSAA website (<http://www.uhsaa.org>). All adjudication forms can be filled out completely using your internet browser. Applications for participation in state festivals are also found at the UHSAA website. These applications are password-protected, and available only to the Region Music Chairpersons. Region chairpersons should ensure that the entries are filled out completely and accurately, and that they are submitted prior to established deadlines.

Winter

- Attend Region Music Chair Training at the UMEA State Conference (February, St. George)
- Share information from UMEA State Music Conference with region music educators
- Remind schools to electronically submit their music eligibility lists on ADnet prior to deadline

UHSAA eligibility lists are due for music no later than February 26, 2010. UHSAA eligibility lists are required for participation in Region and State Jazz Festivals and Region and State Solo and Ensemble Festivals must be entered electronically through the ADnet program accessed from the UHSAA home page (uhsaa.org). Remind all of your music educators they must work with their school athletic director to enter the music eligibility lists because ADnet is password protected. Participants in the UHSAA region and state music festivals must be eligible by UHSAA standards. Talk to your school athletic director about those standards or refer to the UHSAA Handbook (page 22 & 30). Students MUST meet the UHSAA requirements in order to be eligible to perform at these festivals. Marching Band, Orchestra, Concert Band and Large Group Choral DO NOT require eligibility lists

- Official adjudication and entry forms must be used by each school music teacher for all UHSAA sanctioned music festivals. These forms can be obtained at Music Page at uhsaa.org. These forms must be filled out by using the internet browser. Handwritten forms will not be accepted.
